

COURTESY LISTING

LUCY

Lucy is a 1-year-old Tibetan Mastiff and Central Asian Shepard mix. She is up to date on all of her shots but has not been spayed yet due to her large size. Lucy is a sweetheart and protective of the ones she loves. She is great with our goats and gets along with my daughter's pit bull Amara. Lucy is definitely the alpha dog and does not get along so far with male dogs. She is very independent but will come up for hug and a pat on the head, but then she is off and running. She is not a cuddle dog and likes her space. Currently she begrudgingly comes into the house to sleep but prefers to be outside to protect the goats and property. Lucy plays well with my 2 and 3-year-olds, but only for a short time and then she likes to be off on her own.

Lucy's new home needs to have a fenced property to roam around in. She is quite the escape artist and finds any nook and cranny to escape from so she can go on adventures. She would do best in a home that doesn't have small children, not due to aggression but her size and her strength. She needs someone that can give her attention and training. She does not know commands and can be stubborn when it comes to listening. Re homing Lucy is not something we wanted to do, but due to life circumstances we can no longer take care of her like she deserves. We are hardly home and as much as she is little miss independent, she still needs someone to give her love and praise.
