

Ruby May Needs a Home

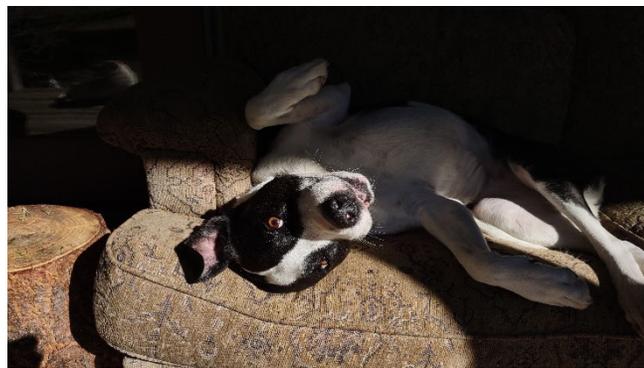

Ruby May is a sweet 3-4 year old Border Collie/Pit-type mix. She is a barrel of love, always needing to snuggle and roll on her back for some belly rubs. She is great on walks on leash, and in general is just so full of sweetness. When we first met her, she was wonderful with so many other dogs, and loves to play, if perhaps a little too rough (not knowing her own size). Unfortunately she needs a new home as she is not getting along with our small Jack Russell Terrier.

She is very excitable and could use some training to keep her from getting out of hand with play, etc., but can also be the gentlest lovebug around. She came to us overweight at 90 pounds, and is now down to 70 and healthy. She tore her ACL a couple of months ago and we have not been able to afford the repair, but she has been getting around just fine on it while we have tried to save up for the surgery.

She loves fetch, tug of war, and trying very hard to get other dogs to play with her! And when she's tuckered out, she adorably snores like a drunk walrus. She would make a wonderful adventure buddy, a farm/porch dog, or both, as she loves lounging and running on trails all the same.

We truly believe she is one of the sweetest, most loveable dogs we have ever met, and are heartbroken to have to re-home her, but we want her to have the life that she deserves but can't when sharing out home with our Jack. She will make a wonderful dog in a single-dog home or a home perhaps with a sweet big dog for her to play with.
